FOREWORD

This is the story of Wesleyan as we know it and love it . . . the part of Wesleyan that is more than a school . . . the part that becomes a part of us . . . the companionships, the fights, the joys, the games we play, the lessons we learn outside of class.

There is so much that is above and beyond the tangible school that we see here; so much that is not wholly concerned with books and lessons . . . it is the Spirit, the Life, that makes one school different from any other, more loved than any other.

That is what this book has tried to catch. This is our life at Wesleyan.

This is Wesleyan.

DEDICATION

In a day when college students are condemned for frivolity, we, the seniors of 1942 dedicate this book to Dr. Claude Watson Bruce, professor of Mathematics and Astronomy. We dedicate it to him because he is a man to whom serious students may turn for aid, and never turn in vain. Because he excels in his chief professional characteristic, intelligence; because the "fun he has with his mind" encourages us to be more interested in academic pursuits; because he shows infinite patience in teaching to us the things he sees so simply; because his genius is unobtrusive, carefully concealed by his modesty, we give to him our deepest admiration, and dedicate to him our book.

Dr. Bruce shows us the sun spots.

The answer must have been perfect, judging from the smile.

MISS ANNABELLE HORN

The most valuable friend we've made lately.
Under her expert guidance the Conservatory has made marvelous progress.

The Dean of Women

MRS. LULA JOHNSON COMER

Mrs. Comer gets our vote for the best of all Counsellors because of her charm and her sincere interest in every student.

EDUCATORS

MR. DANIEL—"Look backward in order to look forward." The relation of past history to history in the making—and how he likes those pop tests.

DR. CULP—Her ready wit suffers greatly from the Coca-Cola shortage—mixes humor with history in a way that her students remember the history.

DR. BRUCE—A wizard of math and physics—and he can add backwards faster than most of us can add forwards.

MISS CARLTON—Quiet, charming, likes horseback riding, and patiently unravels the intricacies of mathematics for us.

MISS DUPUIS—A spirit of fun, laughter, good sportsmanship—you'll find them all in Dottie.

MISS CARTLEDGE—Whether it's swimming or dancing, or some game, she excels in poise and gracefulness.

MRS. LEE—Maudie, music and cheerfulness—they all go together.

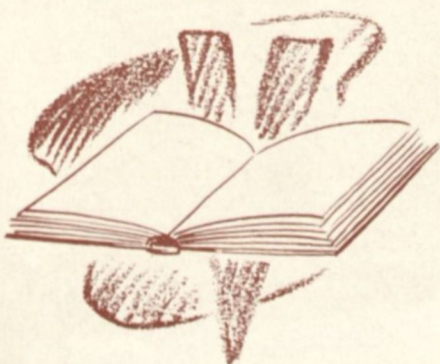

DR. WADE—Education as the educator see it—exponent of applied psychology—practical helps to the future teacher.

MISS THOBURN—She tells fascinating stories of her life in India—simplifies psychology so that even sophomores understand it.

Right:
WADE, THOBURN.

WINN

MISS WINN—Registrar, curriculum-consultant, and general trouble-shooter. Efficient, cheerful and a friend of every Wesleyanne.

MISS ARMAND—The bookstore is her dominion—with great patience, she meets our many needs.

MISS BEASLEY—She who treats our aches and pains—cheerful, witty, sympathetic as a nurse and jolly as a friend.

MR. ALLEY—Wesleyan's financial wizard—a pleasant smile and brisk adding-machine efficiency.

MISS BARTON—Calm ability, a serene and capable manager.

MISS FULWOOD—Efficient, quietly helpful in a thousand ways.

MISS LOYALL—Widely traveled—interesting conversationalist, has at her fingertips information about all Wesleyan alumnae.

MISS ROZAR—Capable and kindly, she supervises the Wesleyan diet.

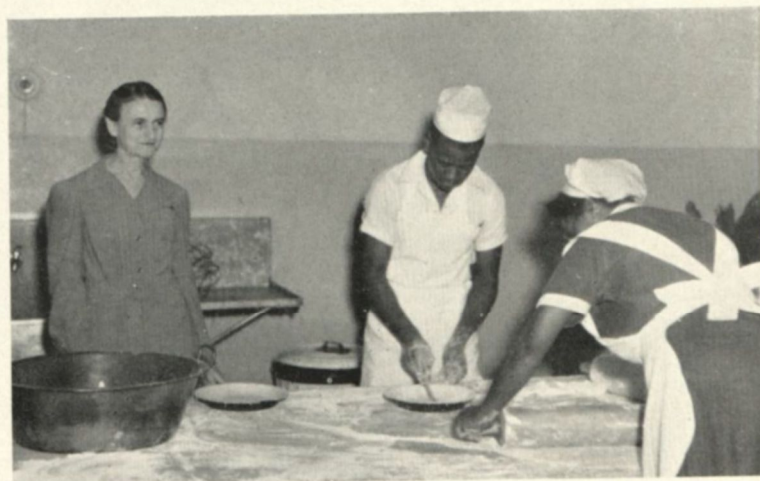

Above: ARMAND
Below: BEASLEY

ALLEY, FULWOOD AND BARTON.

FACULTY

KERN, McKELLER, BROOM.

CHAPLIN

MISS KERN—A merry laugh, a love of flowers, and reminiscences of France. She makes the study of French an adventure.

DR. McKELLER—Latin, Greek, Roman History, and golf—he blends them perfectly.

MISS BROOM—Her candid camera shots are masterpieces.

DR. HUFFMAN—He makes Biblical literature a living force.

MR. WILSON—His friendly charm and sincerity have won the respect and the love of all Wesleyannes.

MISS CHAPLIN—Always hurrying somewhere, usually to lab or teach would-be housewives what lies beyond the can opener.

MISS THOMSON—A lover of music and poetry, her efficiency in editing The Alumnae Magazine is a tie that binds the graduates of various years together

HUFFMAN, WILSON

THOMSON

JOHNSON, RIVERS, WIGGINS AND GIGNILLIAT.

ALMAND

MISS JOHNSON—Her up to the minute knowledge of literature means fascinating lectures—interesting discussions—valuable interpretations of literature.

MISS RIVERS—Serenity and gentleness—and an uncanny ability to call forth the fullest capacities of her students.

DR. WIGGINS—Brilliant command of his subject, literature—demands exactness from his students—and gets it.

DR. GIGNILLIAT—All this and Shakespeare, too—crackling wit—and stupendous assignments.

DR. ALMAND—The philosophic scientist—takes life with a grain of sodium chloride.

MRS. HUFFMAN—Art for beauty's sake—she mixes humor in her paint and human interest with her brush.

MR. FORMAN—Art, architecture and numerous books on parallel.

MISS HOWELL—In class the capable biologist; out of class, she's "Doc," who loves sports, and especially football, and is interested in any Wesleyan activity.

MR. QUILLIAN—He combines the serious study of biology with a light-hearted and genuine love of nature.

MISS REES—A former Wesleyanne who has returned to prove herself indispensable in the library.

MISS CARNES—Writes us clever chapel notes—her twinkling eyes reveal a sense of humor beneath the capable librarian.

REES, CARNES.

HOPPER, SIMONSON,
GRIFFIN, DORMAN.

MISS SIMONSON—All sorts of laurels go to Miss Simonson for the marvelous results she gets in the Dramatic Art Department.

MRS. GRIFFIN—Her activities are many and varied—radio script writing, play writing and public speaking. Her informal talks are just the kind we like.

MISS DORMAN—A Wesleyan College alumnae, a fellowship student in the Dramatic Art Department. She specializes in creative dramatics for children.

MISS HOPPER—Kitty came from the College where she received her degree last year. She is a fellowship student in the Dramatic Art Department and is doing an excellent job.

MR. DOMINGOS—A wonderful knowledge of music in general and musical literature in particular.

MR. ROEDER—Our Theory is that every student works in Harmony with him.

MR. WALDROP—An expert in public school music methods and one of those taking the lead in putting Georgia on the musical map.

MISS FINCHER—Bunny, a fellowship student in the Theory Department, conducts freshmen and sophomore laboratory work.

MR. MAERZ—He puts music not only in the fingers but in the heart as well.

MRS. OGDEN—One teacher who always has the undivided attention of her class, because she omits the unimportant things and goes straight to the point.

MISS LIN—A friend to all and a valuable and experienced teacher.

MISS PINKSTON—She has a decided "way" with her young pupils which extends to grownups.

MISS NELSON—An unbounded enthusiasm about her students and their voices.

MR. EWING—An excellent choral director.

MISS RIVERS—Her many years of valuable work here are sufficient proof of her ability.

MR. DAUGHERTY—He specializes in sculpture and ceramics, and we're being highly complimentary when we say he is a first class chiseler.

MRS. HUFFMAN—She is on our list of favorite persons because she is always in a wonderful humor and because she has the gift of finding good points to art assignments that appear to be a hopeless muddle. She is very much a part of Wesleyan, although this is her first year here.

MR. FORMAN—Mr. Forman is a member of the league that has as its purpose making better home-makers of these Wesleyannes. His course in Interior Decoration is a valuable addition to our curriculum.

MISS HALL—A specialist in her line—Juvenile Art.

MRS. WALDROP—Always charming and cheerful. Her "Good morning" leaves you happier.

MISS MALLARY—Her vibrant personality and expert dancing make her one of our favorite teachers.

MISS JOSSEY—Good food and good health—an authority on both.

MRS. JONES—Her large class enrollments are proof that the Commercial Department is in capable hands.

MISS DOMINGOS—Pleasantness combined with ability and efficiency.

"We came, we saw, we conquered." Into the gates of knowledge flocked the class of '45—150 strong. Very much bewildered and excited, to say nothing of being a little frightened, we were shown to our rooms. We met our roommates, and then the bells began ringing.

Our first week of college life was spent in dashing to and from dear old Science Hall, where many confusing placement tests were given. Once "placed" we lined up for registration which took what seemed to be an eternity. Finding classrooms, and arriving at the appointed place at the right time was something yet again. But we soon slowed down to a fast gallop, took time out to catch our breath, and a light cloak of study settled over Freshman dorm.

The cloak was abandoned when the "Superior" sophomores took over Rat Day. Each time, the cry "Air-raid" was emitted by our momentary dictators we were compelled to flatten out like the proverbial pancake. Then we waited, not too patiently, for the welcome "all's clear" signal. It was great fun though, and we had our day November 27.

Yes, Thanksgiving was celebrated then as was the freshman victory over the sophomores in soccer. Excitement and happiness reigned in each of us as we proudly went to the banquet. We sang songs to each class as they in turn sang to us, and we knew at that moment the true meaning of college spirit.

Being a true Tri-K class, defeat was impossible, even in the finals, when we tied the seniors, in a never-to-be-forgotten game.

Stunt night made its appearance suddenly and although as actors we make better soccer players, we enjoyed the event tremendously. We have all made a solemn vow that next year will tell a different story, and the Tri-K's will come out on the top where they should be.

Tuesday night, December 16, we donned white dresses, carried individual candles, and attended our first Wesleyan Christmas banquet. The decorations were complete with a musical Christmas tree, and candle light. We ate for hours, sang carols, and left feeling very "Christmasy."

Sure enough, holidays were just four and a half trips around the clock away. Early, early, Friday morning we put candles in our windows so the carolers would sing for us. Classes were vaguely met that day, but spirits brightened as the hour neared to go home to our own Mr. and Mrs. Claus.

January 5 found us eagerly opening up our rooms, talking to everyone about our glorious vacation and finally down to exams. Then came basketball, swimming, and classes. So went our first year—it's great to be a Wesleyanne.

SOPHOMORES

*Not an object, not a spirit, vague of shape and lacking size;
Many girls I lead to glory, urging on with constant cries.
Inside and out 'm green and yellow, always debonair and sporty,
Now you know without a doubt—I'm the "Alarm of Four and forty!"*

I'm not like an ordinary alarm clock, nor am I the siren type. In fact I have a personality all my own, and after a year's experience my stimulating influence on the Green and Yellow class is more efficient than ever. I'll have to admit that in my infancy, I made some serious mistakes. Wesleyan sorta scared me at first, and due to my bashful silence, the freshmen received a thorough soaking in Golden Heart dishwasher.

Unfortunately that didn't mean the end of my tongue tiedness, for I persisted in acting like a kindergarten kid and merely whimpered upon coming in last at Stunt Night.

Soccer was likewise a sad story, but after Christmas things improved. Strangely enough, I began to realize my vocal possibilities. By clear and frequent warnings, I aroused my girls into a basketball victory over the sophomores, outstanding honors in the horse-show, and first place in the swimming meet.

By the spring dance, I was so hoarse from excitement that I had to go to bed and miss the fun. However I convalesced enough during May to ring out the thrilling announcement that with special permission freshmen could triple date and leave the campus. Exams soon forced a final silencer on me, and I settled down until the end of the summer when I would resume activity.

CLASS OF '44

Now summer is gone, fall is almost over, and I think I've put out some praiseworthy effort since September.

First I delighted the new sophomores by pointing out to them the abundance of handsome uniforms strolling around the campus and revealing that they could go to any of the favorite jook joints by simply double dating. This wonderful prospect even reconciled them to extra studying on all those hard subjects they didn't elect last year.

Members of the Green and Yellow were thrilled when I suggested an official Rat Day rather than a surprise attack on those new Tri-K's. They worked out a routine, complete with paper bag rat hats, my air raid alarms, and convenient little services to the sophomores.

In soccer, the sophs defeated the juniors, 4 to 2, but alarmed me considerably by admitting that both the frosh and seniors were unbeatable.

"Bellzapoppin'," depicting Camp Wheeler School for Boys, was judged second only to the senior stunt, and this was quite an up-hill stride from fourth place last year.

Not long ago, I had to shock the girls with two upsetting items: (1) They couldn't meet boys at the pharm at night any more; (2) Three sophomores were joining the ranks of newly-weds, and that meant wedding presents.

Even more spectacular and unpleasant was my signal that the United States had declared war. But the Christmas spirit caught the sophs, and they realized that there was still something to live for. Making the best, as usual, of an alarming situation, they're cheerfully drilling in the halls these days. A determined idea is possessing them that will defeat any other class on any field next year at Wesleyan.

THREE IN ONE AND ONE TO GO

It feels just right to be singing again, "Freshmen, win that game," as our little sisters dribble the ball. "Freshmen" rolls off our tongues as easily as our feet fit into those old saddle shoes, for we'll never get over the freshmen feeling or want to. And though we are so used to every bend and turn in the dorms and Tate that we can find our way in the dark (as we had to prove during that nightmarish blackout before our worst exam last year), and though we know now just when to break our mental set when going down to the Amphitheater in Science, we'll never forget the first time we saw Wesleyan College—the chilly thrill we had when we gave ourselves up to those calm, friendly

Wesleyannes in blue and white and purple and white and suddenly found ourselves standing in our college room. "Questionnaires" still call up terrors of the first quizzing stage of the Bachelor of Arts Degree. There were bumps in our freshmen throats when we lost the soccer games, but we choked down different kinds of lumps—lumps that won't ever go way—as we sang to our big sisters and caught a bit of Wesleyan on our first Thanksgiving Day here. And then came our initial college stage fright, stunt night, and the beat of our golden hearts when "So Red the O'Hara" won first place. These freshmen memories are a part of us.

We almost forgot and told Mr. Douglas to send our bags to Sophomore as we stumbled off at midnight at the Wesleyan station this year. It seemed like we ought to be going back to Sophomore, to the halls that echoed with the mystery of that eerie shriek, and to the parlor where we practiced our stunt and gathered in disappointment after it "Hit and Missed by a third place." It was as sophomores that we tied the gold and white colors to the Soccer Championship Cup! Greeting the freshmen with a bang, the heartache of losing basketball, the loveliness of our first Wesleyan dance, the solemn moment when we dropped the hood over our dearest senior's head, and goodbye to a sister we are still lonely for—these memories will always make us a bit of a soph.

But now its "up with the banners bright" for the Juniors. We love those memories, but right at the moment we are knowing the greatest thrill of all, being a big sister. Nobody knows how we love those new Tri-K's. There are many missing links in our junior gold chain of friendship now, and we miss them dreadfully. We've had to develop multiple personalities, forget that we never could kick a ball further than a foot away, and entertain delusions of grandeur, seeing ourselves pass the senior test and making the swimming team all in one year. But one of our deepest junior feelings is the close knit sensation we have at class meetings in a dormitory room, and midnight war and peace bull sessions of the whole pajamaed class.

Mary Bell's ready for dinner, but what a rush Marianna is in!

Hair rolled up and suit case packed. Tomorrow must be Friday for Nell.

Busy juniors have to keep trim so Sybil and Dorothea try reducing.

We didn't know any spectator sympathetic pains this year, for the shins of the junior class were exposed as a body in the heartache of the soccer defeat; and though the dilemma of the class of 28 got only third place, every Golden Heart was in its fate. There's a little red scooter you might call a landmark in this every-day doing of things together.

Wesleyan was aglow with the torch parade of the juniors and the freshmen, and Junior-Senior seemed right again with the dear old Tri-K's back Thanksgiving. A long, long trail of lighted candles down the banquet table and carols in the frosty air made our junior Christmas at Wesleyan even happier than the others.

But now our history is becoming present front-mind news. We are looking ahead, wondering "Can we ever feel like seniors? Do we honestly have caps and gowns next year?" Yes, there is one more grand college feeling yet! We're part freshmen, with some of the lazy soph in our bones, juniors, but definitely, and though we can't believe it, seniors-to-be, but most of all we're Golden Hearts through and through.

The day was long and hard. Now Julia's falling asleep over her Shakespeares.

Below: By the Christmas tree; Mary Clapp and lieutenant. This is the week the Watchtower comes out, next week Lilly will study. What's your hurry, Buff? Edith and Lucia mix work with study.

Right: Junior sisters are busy girls. Paige chats with little sister Faye while Ann looks on. Beth gathers the Christmas presents for the orphans. See how pretty they are wrapped.

Below: Sarah Ann insists that there must be a mix up, so Harriet gets the call-down back. Two Marthas show how juniors fill up spare(?) minutes knitting for the Red Cross. Juniors are golfers, too! Double-dating juniors—Mary Hall, Ann Burkbalter and the army.

The earth is a wide plain on which can be found at unequal intervals numerous educational institutions. Georgia is one of the forty-eight states in one of the many countries that are situated on the face of this great plain. Wesleyan is one of a number of educational institutions which are in the state of Georgia. Why, then, out of all this great plain, did we choose Wesleyan to be our Alma Mater? Some say it was Mrs. Wiggins, others say it was a family tradition, and still others say it was the red bricks and white columns that first captivated them. But now we have found out that Mrs. Wiggins was right—"The buildings are easily accessible, the dining room is beautiful, and three-piece suits are the best buy for college wear." What is more important, we have discovered a spirit in the place that has made us understand why it is a family tradition to come here. Behind the red bricks is something more than a bare education, something dearer than a bundle of books. We have found not mere food for the mind but food for the soul.

THE SENIOR CLASS

Traditions, silence, friends mean more to us now. A friend is no longer a person with whom to gossip and talk about another person; it is a rare being to whom you may express your ideas and ideals. We can remember nightly gatherings—arguments without hard feelings, and then leaving with a sense of something gained in those late hours. When we graduate, must we lose these friends?

We have found that silence is invaluable. It is in those too infrequent moments that pure thought is kindled and ideas run rampant through the brain until they are gathered and combined in the next moment of silence.

Singing, cabin parties, candlelight banquets, pharm trips, bacon sandwiches, little sisters, potatoes and ice cream—have all become traditions and there would be a gap if we were to lay even one aside. These are the memories we will keep.

We have learned how to take defeats as well as victories. We lost in soccer three years, but finally in the fourth we tied for winning place with the freshmen. Orange tulips above all taught us a lesson in losing, but our last two years we found the secret of winning the stunts—maybe it was judge-appeal. As freshmen our Ferdinand the Bull Frog won audience's hearts and first place in the swimming meet. Our sophomore year we won the entire meet. Basketball has always been another story until our senior year when we won this too.

We have seen many things happen in four years; from the advent of dancing to an indefinite time for lights at night. We look forward to other changes. But we know one thing will never change—the spirit of "the emblem of all that is grand."

Thus we shall depart with trust in this spirit.

W E D E D I C A T E

This, the Conservatory section of the VETERROPT, to our beloved "Papa," Professor Joseph Maerz, Director of Music, whose wise guidance and true friendship have inspired, enlightened, and enriched our lives.

The four years are telescoped now so that they form a single impression that evades words but leaves you with a glow when you think about it.

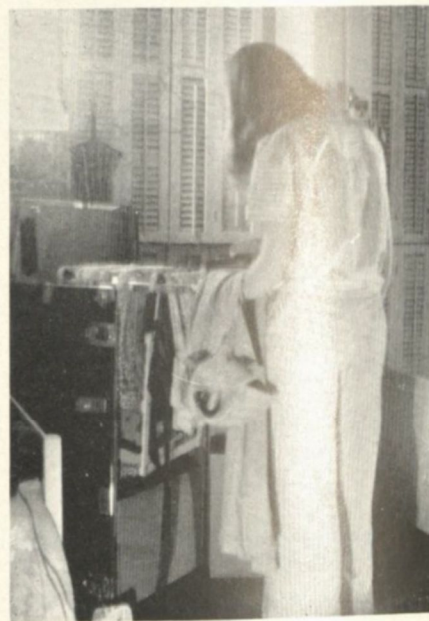

College began with a bang for us—that bang being our respective egos hitting a new low. We, who were just three months removed from our awe-inspiring status as high school seniors, became lowly rats—subject to the contempt of upperclassmen. For some of us it was the first experience in “give and take”—with emphasis on the “take.” We can’t say that we emerged from that first year without scars, but along with those we got our first priceless lessons in the art of living.

With our sophomore year came the beginning of dignity—which we were careful to keep under cover until we were off-campus; however, we found consolation and balm for our wounded spirits in that year’s glorious concert series.

Things happened so fast during our third year that we were forced to leave off our introspective musings. In September we unpacked in Wesleyan’s first wall-papered rooms—with new furniture and full-length mirrors. The privilege of voluntary class attendance—if your name were among the blest on the Dean’s list—lent an almost ethereal atmosphere to the year.

And now, for the second time in our lives, we are on a threshold. We are more fully equipped, not only with factual knowledge, but with a knowledge that we must rely upon to show us the way when we are on other thresholds.

Dear Mom—

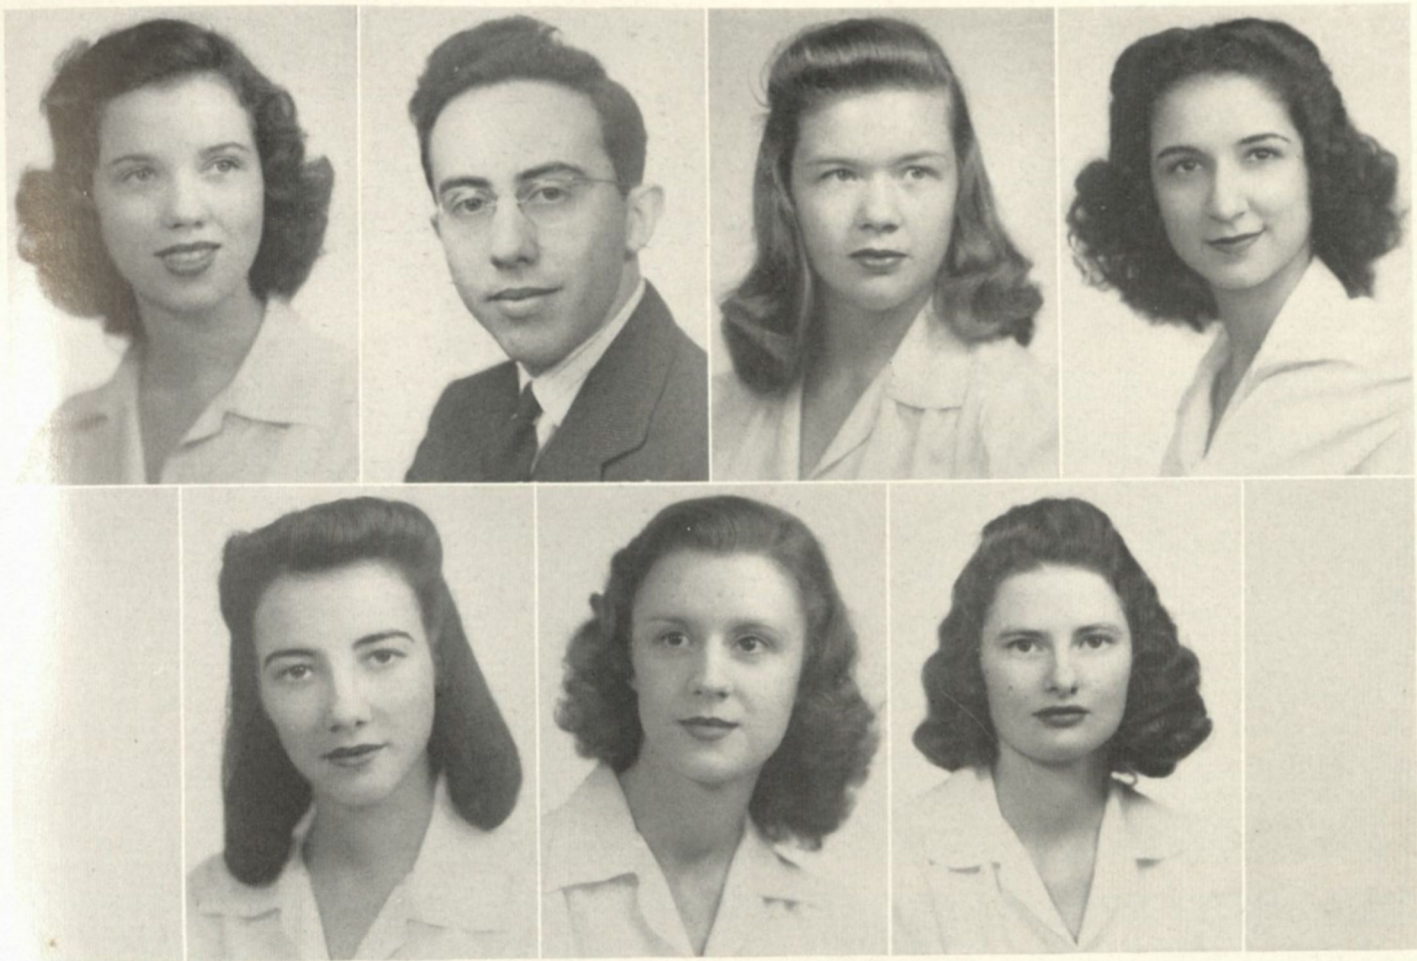

We have just been having a bull session—Annie, Katye, Kathleen, Norma, and myself. You know how it is—you get to talking on first one thing and then another, well, somehow the conversation got started on what the Junior Class had been doing the past three years.

Remember the first dance ever held at Wesleyan? That was when I got the new evening dress and forgot to send you the bill until two months later. And all the festive occasions where we had so much fun—and every time punch was served Annie spilled it all over her and her date—what cleaning bills! Wiener roasts and scavenger hunts, will I ever forget 'em? No! Ah me! Those were the good ole days. Hope we have as much fun next year.

Now just wait a second, Mom. By now you're probably thinking your darling infant ain't nothing but a social butterfly—t'aint so. We've beaten on those pianos so much till Norma and Kathleen declare the darn things fold up on their knees and beg for mercy every time they go in the practice rooms. And Katye lived her part in Ghost Train for weeks before it opened. We were the ones she practiced on, and were we relieved when she got it out of her system on opening night.

You know Mom, the last thing we talked about was midnight feasts. You know the last thing I would ever do would be to hint—but—well—we surely would appreciate a box from home.

FLASH

Hello everyone!—This is station S.O.P.H. broadcasting from the beautiful tower room of Wesleyan Conservatory in the heart of Macon, Georgia—the voice of the class of 1944! We're small, but have plenty of spirit—and that's what let's everyone know we're here. Our wholesome number consists of four thorough-bred Wesleyannes, two transfers, and one Wesley-Tom, who incidentally seems to be topping with his rank of president.

It doesn't seem that just last year we were seven unsuspecting freshmen, brought together by old friend Fate—everyone thinking himself pre-educated and feeling it to be a sharp inconvenience that we must slide through four years to get that diploma he wanted so much!

Yes—we knew we had the wisdom of the world! Well, here we are just sophomores and we've found we aren't quite so wise—but, we've got that spark of determination. We know that's what it takes. So you'll find all us "in there" no matter what—.

And so that's the news from here! Tune in, won't you? Same station, same time—365 days from now and listen once again to news brought to you from station S.O.P.H.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The object of the Conservatory Government is to represent and further the interests of the Student Body and to promote responsibility, self-control, and loyalty among the students. Meetings of the Council are held each week in the newly-decorated council room. Plans and problems of each department are discussed, and thus a greater cooperation is maintained.

The Council promotes various social activities for the students. During this year the students have enjoyed an Open House in honor of the new students, and several formal dances in the spacious parlors of the Conservatory. The students also had the pleasure of dedicating a new barbecue pit on back campus, which will be a source of entertainment for Conservatory students in future years.

The chief aim of this group is to promote cooperation, the true Wesleyan spirit.

The Wesleyan Glee Club reorganized during 1941-1942, combining the Rivoli and the Conservatory members into one group. Aside from the regular ensemble, there are special groups of trios and quartets that have added to the Glee Club programs. An outstanding event of the year was held on President Roosevelt's birthday when the club sang at the Birthday Ball.

An organization on campus such as the Glee Club gives opportunity for young composers of choral music to hear their compositions sung. It also affords a chance for students to learn ensemble singing and effects. Training in the blending of voices makes far better directors of choirs and ensembles when the students leave college. Here, also, is given the opportunity for students to gain experience in choral direction by their appointment as student directors.

DRAMATIC CLUB

This year the Conservatory and College joined forces to organize a Dramatic Club that is unrivaled in the history of the department. The officers of the club, headed by Flora Etta Swain as president, planned and executed a series of unusually entertaining programs which were open to the student body. One of the highlights of the year was a group of one-act plays staged by members of the directing class. Play reviews and discussions of the stage also afforded theatre-minded Wesleyannes many pleasant evenings. Much credit is due Miss Simonson who as sponsor offered invaluable aid and advice.

Interesting and varied plans have been made for next year, and the Dramatic Club promises to become one of the most outstanding organizations on the campus.

The Wesleyan Art Club was organized at Wesleyan Conservatory during the winter of 1941 under the supervision of Mrs. Norman Huffman, head of the Art Department of Wesleyan Conservatory. An unusual coincidence is that three of the officers are named Frances Elizabeth. The present officers of the Wesleyan Art Club are as follows: Frances Elizabeth Daniel, President; Frances Elizabeth Jordan Hutcheson, Treasurer; Frances Elizabeth Martin, Secretary; Christopher Simpson, Reporter.

On December 2 the Wesleyan Art Club attended a lecture given by Thomas Hort Benton, author of An Artist in America, at the University of Georgia. He is noted for his paintings of the American scene. Jean Charlot, lecturer for the Carnegie Corporation, gave a lecture at the Conservatory on December 7. He was staff artist for the Carnegie Archaeological Expedition to Chicken Itza. Jean Charlot is noted for his paintings of the Mexican scene.

PIANO CLUB

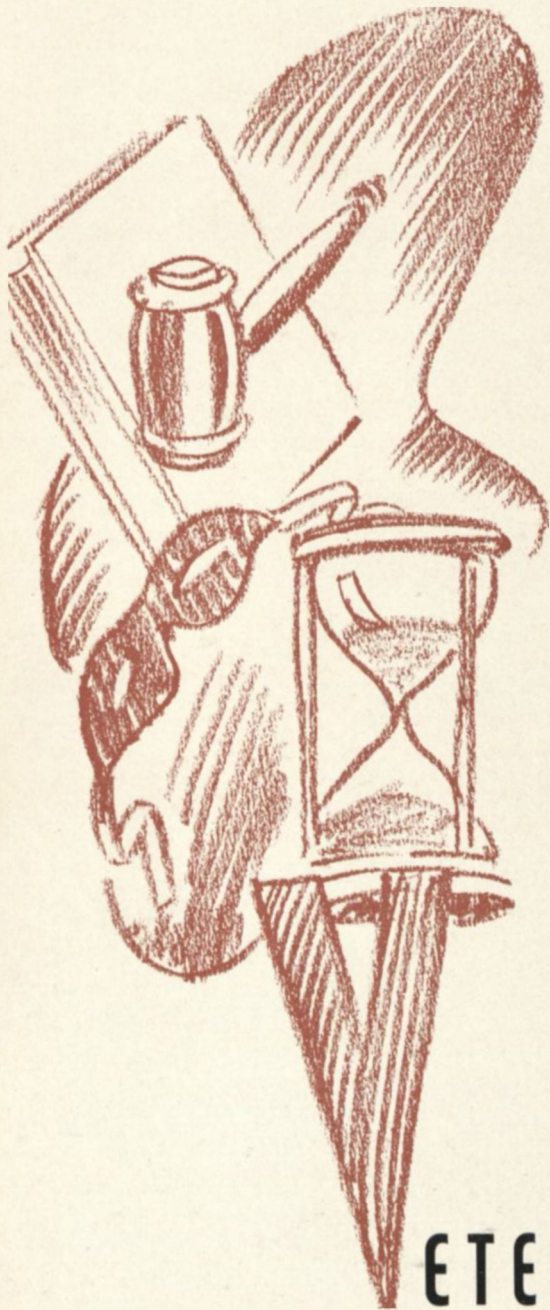

The Piano Club has been an outstanding organization in the musical activities of the Conservatory this year. In connection with the piano literature studied, many outstanding lectures and interesting student recitals have been presented. The success of this club has been due to the intense interest of its members, and to the guidance of its sponsor, Professor Joseph Maerz.

ANNIE LAURIE KURTZ
Editor-in-Chief

This year the VETERROPT staff has attempted to do more than merely compile a lasting record of the events and activities of the year; it has tried to capture, in some small measure, the spirit that lies beyond the curriculum—the intangible quality that makes one school different from all others. To do this has required the close cooperation of the entire staff, and the success of the book makes the effort worth while.

The VETERROPT is indebted to Mr. George Collins for his assistance in making pictures for the annual. Without his help, much of the pictorial work would have been impossible to accomplish.

The success of this volume, as always, depends upon its value to each student, and in this the entire staff hopes that it has presented something of lasting worth.

ALICE BURROWES
Editor of The Wesleyan

In planning The Wesleyan of 1941-42, the staff has sought to present material which students will enjoy reading, and find interesting and helpful.

Believing that a student publication should be designed primarily for student pleasure and information rather than for faculty criticism, we have tried to eliminate the practice of using themes and stories which were written for class assignments. Instead, we have tried to encourage writing for the love of it. Contributions have not been limited to the work of English majors. We have sought new talent, and have found writers of promise in the freshman and sophomore classes as well as among the juniors and seniors.

Five issues of The Wesleyan were published this year. These issues contained amusing fiction, poetry, helpful and informational articles, book reviews, and several new features which appeared regularly. "An Ear To The Ground" was a column of amusing incidents which happen on the campus and off, to students and faculty members. "Tangled Skeins" was made up of wit and wisdom gathered from various sources, and included "lyric lines," in which unique or lovely expressions of various Wesleyannes were printed. "Inside Information" was the editor's attempt to tell what went on behind the scenes of the magazine's publication, who the contributors were, and something about the contents of each issue.

The covers featured bright paper and new designs, and as much variety as possible. Cuts were used throughout the magazine to make it appealing to the artistic as well as to the literary eye.

The Scribes continued to contribute both prose and poetry to the magazine throughout the year, and the final issue of The Wesleyan consisted entirely of representative works of the members of this honorary writers' group.

The staff feels that we have succeeded in holding for the magazine the student interest which has been so carefully built up in recent years, and that The Wesleyan has enjoyed another year of successful publication.

T H E W A T C H

LILLY LAKE
Editor of the Watchtower

The Watchtower, published bi-weekly, has three main purposes. First, to present accurately and interestingly the campus activities. Second, to give to the student body, intelligent leadership for progressive measures. The third purpose is to train good journalists in the impartial and ethical presentation of all phases of a newspaper by actually working on a publication.

This year the staff has tried to make managing the paper a bit easier. A style sheet, setting down in black and white exactly what could and could not be capitalized, abbreviated, etc., was drawn up and presented to all the reporters and to the journalism class.

Journalism 201 has served as additional reporters for the Watchtower this year. The assignments were given out by the editors to the class and they were turned in as news stories upon which they received a grade. The co-operative system helped the staff and the printing of the articles helped the journalism students.

A new feature, Swap, was used to alternate with Orchids and Onions. The Swap column replaced the seldom read exchange column. Orchids and Onions gave praise where needed and dished out the onions as the staff saw the campus scene.

Varying from the policy of the editors of recent years, this year's staff made the editorials into a regular column. The position of the editorial page was moved from the last page to the second page.

The Watchtower is proud to say that we approve heartily of the new changes on the campus and feel it has done its part to help the students adjust themselves to the changes. The editorial policy of the paper has always been one of reform. Interpretative comments concerning pertinent campus and national affairs were carried in the paper. Editorial policy backed the fight against Talmadge dictatorship of education although the governor's policies did not directly affect Wesleyan.

A spring style show, sponsored by the Watchtower, was held in January to promote better posture and call attention to the fashion-right clothes as well as the campus-right clothes.

Throughout the year the Watchtower has supported the various worthwhile campus organizations and has tried to help college and conservatory girls to become better acquainted. A Watchtower staff was selected from the conservatory and has functioned this year.

With a newly decorated office and new lavender jerkins, the Student Government Association started off the year with determined enthusiasm to make this year a happy and profitable one for all Wesleyannes.

Together with Y and A. A. at the bi-annual retreat—held at the Anderson Cabin before school opened in September—we made plans for orientation week, and discussed aims and objectives for the coming year.

On the day school opened, members of Student Government, dressed in white skirts and lavender jerkins, welcomed the new students and helped them become acquainted with the Oldest and Best.

During orientation week, the Student Government gave a wiener roast at the cabin honoring the freshmen.

At the beginning of this year, Student Government members held hand-book classes for the freshmen. At this time all college customs and traditions, as well as rules and regulations, were discussed and explained.

The annual student-faculty reception, given by Student Government, was held in the Grand Parlor in the early fall.

Other activities for this year include placing new absence books in each dormitory for the convenience of students, posting a social calendar at the beginning of each semester, posting a definite list of approved recreational centers Wesleyan students may attend, making a scrapbook of all social events, and putting up signs every election day reminding students to vote.

ELIZABETH MARTIN
President

COLLEGE GOVERNMENT

The Student Council carried out other plans during the second half of the year—more places were planned for the students to entertain dates, open council meetings were held, and a reception for new council members was planned in the spring.

Student Government strives for a closer and more nearly perfect understanding between the students and the College Government. The council feels responsible for understanding the interests of the students, and the students in turn should accept the responsibility of upholding the standards of our college by living in accordance with the regulations. In this way, we can make the Student Government Association of Wesleyan College a government of the students, by the students, and for the students.

SCRIBES

The Scribes, honorary literary society, founded in 1920, is composed of a group of students who are especially active in writing. Although members of the club originally devoted their time to poetry, in recent years the Scribes have broadened their field to include all types of prose as well.

This year the society has given a series of Sunday afternoon teas in an effort to stimulate interest in literature and creative writing on the campus. Speakers at the literary gatherings during the year included Mrs. Anne Griffin, who gave an original Southern sketch, Miss Katharine Carnes, who reviewed John Masefield's In the Mill, Miss Louise Rivers, who read from Aeneas Africanus by Harry Stillwell Edwards. The society also enjoyed programs by Miss Eunice Thomson, Miss Anabel Horn, and Miss Katherine Hopper.

Throughout the year the Scribes have written plays, poems, short stories, and articles which have appeared in The Wesleyan and the Watchtower. In the spring the organization put out a special Scribes issue of The Wesleyan.

COUNCIL OF PRESIDENTS

When the presidents of the various campus organizations met in council in October, they planned their activity program for the year. The first event was a wiener roast on back campus for the freshmen, to which the young men of Macon were invited. Hot dogs, Coca-Colas, open fires, and an entertainment helped the freshmen to become better acquainted with each other. During the year, the organizations sponsored open house at the Cabin on Sunday afternoons.

The Council is composed of the presidents of the major campus organizations, the four class presidents and the editors of the student publications. The activities include work on the social calendar and the presentation of the nominations for officers of Student Government and Y. W. C. A. Nominations are made by Presidents Council and are submitted to the student body for the final vote. With the VETERROPT staff, the group of Presidents nominates outstanding seniors to be included in the feature section of the Annual.

A sing at the cabin, or a worship service on Sunday night, a play group at the Hephzibah Orphanage or a round-table discussion with industrial girls—these and many other activities are a part of the Young Women's Christian Association on the campus.

The purpose of the Y. W. C. A. is as follows: "We unite in the desire to realize a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him."

For forty-five years, the Y. W. C. A. has been a living organization on the Wesleyan campus, striving ever to carry out its purpose not only on the campus but in the community also. The "Y" for that reason is not simply another club to which the students belong, but is a growing, world-wide fellowship of all those among the students who are earnestly seeking to know God and to practice the way of life as set up by Jesus Christ.

The work of the organization, both on the campus and in the community is carried on by various committees. The Social Activities Department enriches social living through parties, after-dinner coffee, suppers, Stunt Night, and the Christmas Banquet.

The Department of Social Service gives real opportunity for living the purpose of the "Y." It sponsors a Christmas tree for the servants, and offers the channel through which the Wesleyan girls play Santa Claus to the children at the Hephzibah Home. Hallowe'en parties, a Thanksgiving turkey, Easter egg hunts, wiener roasts, and games for the children there also help to make their lives happy.

World Friendship and Industrial Commission offer an opportunity for the students to come to a better understanding and closer fellowship with groups who are not students. Music and worship offer a chance for worship and meditation, enjoyment and enrichment.

The Publicity Committee, by clever posters and notices, remind busy students of the discussions, worship services, sings and other "Y"-sponsored activities.

At Easter and Christmas, the Dramatic Department joins with the Y. W. C. A. in presenting an Easter and Christmas pageant. During the spring the Physical Education Department co-operates with the "Y" in putting on "Charm Week."

Serving as links between the "Y" cabinet and the student body are Freshman Commission, Sophomore Council, Activity Council, and day student representative. The chief aim of these parts of the organization is that each student may feel her vital connection with the Y. W. C. A. and grasp the opportunities that lie before her.

From the first Morning Watch in September to Taps on the last night in May, the Y. W. C. A. works to carry out its purpose in the life on the campus.

DEBATERS' COUNCIL

The Debaters' Council is an independent organization and not a part of the Speech Department. It is open to all Wesleyan students who show a definite interest in current events as well as debating. Interest, rather than ability, is the basis for entrance try-outs.

A debating team is chosen by means of an elimination tournament. The subject for debate for the year 1941-1942 has been: "Resolved, That the Federal Government should regulate by law all labor unions in the United States."

During 1941-'42, the International Relations Club has attempted to study the existing war conditions with an eye to possible peace settlements. Various authorities were presented in open forum meetings of the club.

Miss Katharine Johnson, Dean of Women, who has taught in Japan for the past seventeen years, spoke to the club on the Psychology of the Japanese. Dr. Isabel Thoburn, recently returned from a teaching position in India, spoke on India's Place in the World Today. Mr. Walter Paschall, news commentator of radio station WSB in Atlanta, discussed the South and its part in the present war. Mr. Marcus Bartlett, also of station WSB, spoke to the club.

A movie in technicolor showing the interesting sections of America was presented before the club. Attendance at these meetings was open to the student body because of the wide-spread interest brought about by current world affairs.

The Wesleyan I. R. C. is affiliated with the Carnegie Endowment for World Peace. It has also been active in the formation of the Georgia International Relations Club.

Although France today is no longer active as a country, Americans who love her are determined that French shall be kept a living language. This is one of the purposes of the Wesleyan French Club.

Only French is spoken at the meetings, from the secretary's reading of the minutes to the social conversation over refreshments. The students themselves prepare and give the programs on French life, such as art, literature, music, architecture, and history.

The Cercle Francais of Wesleyan is affiliated with the National Alliance Francaise. Through such organizations as this the French language will be kept alive, and her great literature will never die.

Since 1940 students interested in gaining knowledge of psychology have been able to study and to become better acquainted with this psychology-conscious world. The name Cyclothymic means a progressive, and well balanced individual, and this is the aim of the club.

Some of the activities that the club has sponsored have been the sale of personality, vocational and I. Q. tests, to the students, and a field trip to the Milledgeville mental hospital to study the main classes of disorders at first hand by the Abnormal Psychology students.

Membership in the club is based on an average of B in General Psychology.

CRUCIBLE CLUB

The Crucible Club, which was founded March 2, 1937, is composed of girls who have completed the general chemistry requirements and are particularly interested in science.

It has gained recognition through its presentation of the Leon P. Smith award, a gold medallion, to an outstanding teacher of chemistry or geology in the southeastern states. The recipients of this award have been Dr. E. Emmett Reid, of Johns Hopkins University, in 1938; Dr. Samuel Guy, Emory University, in 1939, and in 1940; Dr. Stephen Taber, of the University of South Carolina.

The Leon P. Smith award is made in memory of Dr. Leon P. Smith who was dean, teacher and friend of every Wesleyan girl and charter member of the Crucible Club.

Never let it be said that Wesleyan girls don't get in their full share of exercise. From soccer games in the fall to the horse show on Dormitory Day in the late spring, the schedule is filled with activity.

The ping-pong tournament gets things off to a good start in the early fall and helps pass the time away until the soccer tournament. Immediately following the big Thanksgiving festivity and the finals in the soccer, badminton starts and carries the activity up to Christmas.

In the midst of all this competition there is always something going on around the gym with which Wesleyan-annes can pass away the time. The pool is open and besides swimming one finds archery, ping-pong, badminton, horse-back, and bicycling to aid in keeping that school girl figure.

Vice-President Buff Kenner and Secretary Elinor Rees enjoy the sun and the fountain while they discuss plans for the girl-break dance that A. A. sponsored.

Before one can catch their breath good after the Christmas vacation, basketball comes rushing in to keep everyone breathless, both player and spectator. On the heels of the basketball games everyone begins splashing about in the swimming pool with the hope of making the swimming team.

Then comes the time of good fun and fellowship when girls come from all over the south for dormitory day and all the horse-back riding talent of the school springs forth. Along about this same time singles and doubles tennis matches are held.

To finish things up in grand style and to relieve the tension that comes with exams, everybody turns out for a good time on the baseball diamond. So ends our year.

Outside of the ordinary routine of the year's program the Athletic Association has placed in the Athletic Room a plaque on which are to be engraved the names of two seniors each year who have proved to be most athletic and at the same time have displayed the best sportsmanship during their entire four years at Wesleyan. In co-operation with the "Y" and Student Government organizations the play room was repainted and new equipment was purchased.

A Perfect Thanksgiving day for soccer. The 1941 season opened with the annual freshman-sophomore and junior-senior games on Thursday, November 28.

The first of the two games was between the freshmen and sophomores. The strong freshman forward line challenged the oncoming sophomores and won a 6-4 victory. The junior-senior game brought together old foes. The game drew to an exciting 2-2 tie. During the five-minute overtime, the seniors eked out a 4-2 victory.

The first of the play-off was a victory for the freshmen and sophomores. The seniors and freshmen play their game first. Both teams fought hard, but the freshmen won 3-2. Captain Blanche Coleman's excellent penalty kick resulted the freshmen's one-point lead.

SOCCER

The sophomore-junior game was a hard fought battle. The juniors felt the loss of one of their most capable players, Shorty Willcox, and lost the game to the sophomores with the score 4-2. This game dropped the juniors from the tournament.

Sister classes met in the semi-finals. The sophomores were eliminated by the seniors, 4-2.

The Juniors and Seniors are really fighting hard for that ball.

The freshmen Tri-K's met the senior eleven in the final game of the season. The purple and white were playing their last game at Wesleyan. They used fast and thrilling plays. The freshmen played a strong offensive forward line. The game came to a close with a 2-2 tie. The game was still a tie at the end of the five-minute overtime period. Each team was then given three penalty kicks. Blanche Coleman kicked for the freshmen; Virginia Harvey for the seniors. Both girls made two goals. Again, the game was a tie. This time, each team was given five penalty kicks. Both teams made three goals out of five tries. For the first time in the history of Wesleyan soccer, the championship game ended in a tie.

mores and was spectacular with long shots. Standouts among the guards were Martha Martin, freshman, Tab Lowe, sophomore, and Dot Pim, sophomore.

In the junior-senior game, Ruth Wilson, fast and tricky with fake shots, and Shorty Willcox, tied for scoring honors with 12 points each for the juniors. Scoring was evenly divided among the senior forwards, Betty King, Annie Laurie Kurtz, and Anne Smith, who made 10 points each.

In the second game the freshmen and juniors were victors. The freshmen beat the seniors 26-20. The sophomores lost to the juniors 16-24.

The seniors and juniors met again in the semi-finals. At the half the juniors were leading with a small lead. When the game ended the seniors won, 32-28.

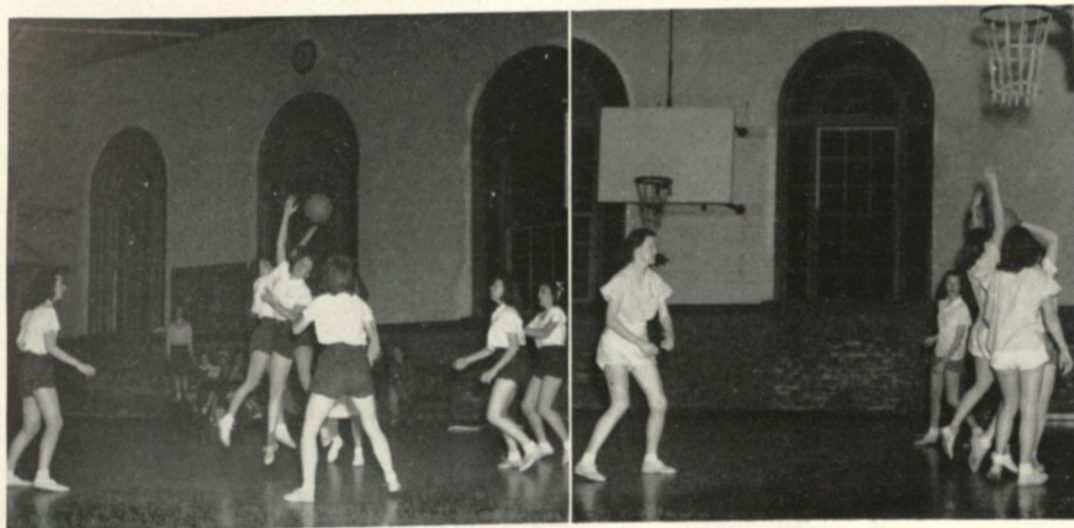

The freshmen and seniors played in the final game. The game was fast and furious. The seniors played their best game in four years at Wesleyan. It was their last game and they were determined to win. When the referee's whistle blew, ending the last game of the basketball season, the seniors were 25 and the freshmen 24.

The Seniors are mighty proud of that scoreboard.

Basketball, as all other sports at Wesleyan, is an intramural game. Freshmen and sophomores and juniors and seniors are traditionally vied against each other the first night. At the second game, the winners of the first night's games play each other and both the losing teams play. The third game has as its participants the losers of the winners and the winners of the losers. The final night sees the winners of the second and third games contest for the championship.

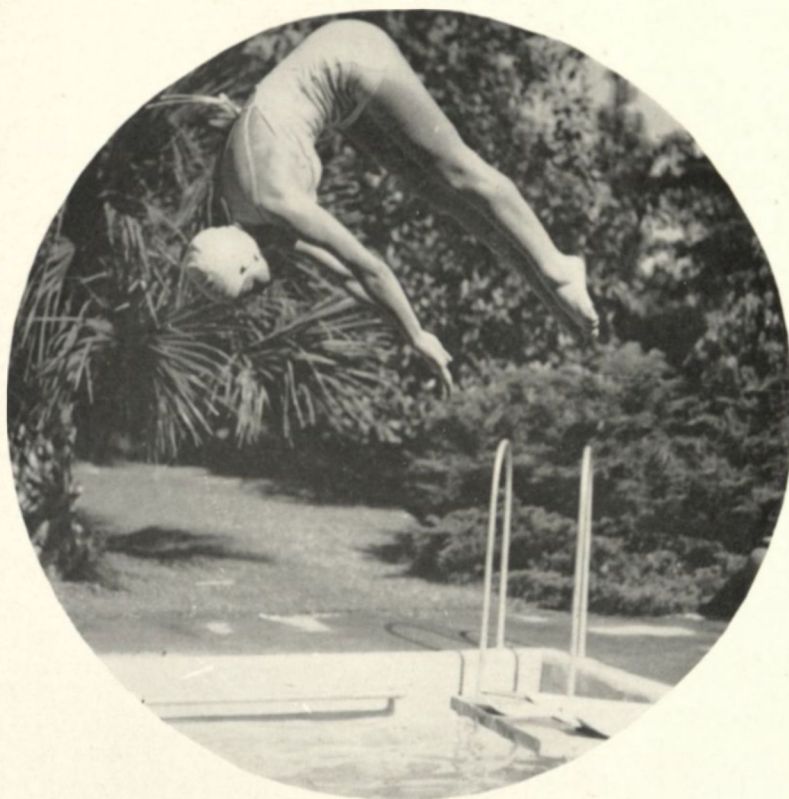

IN THE SPRING IT'S SWIMMING

Swimming is one of the major sports at Wesleyan. Teams are chosen before Spring holidays and the girls bring their suits back from home—ready to spend their extra time in the pool. However, a girl does not have to be an excellent swimmer to enjoy the pool. Beginners' classes are held twice a week and every Wesleyanne learns to swim during her four years at Wesleyan.

Courses in life-saving and water safety are given by students who have become Red Cross instructors through cooperation with the Macon Red Cross.

The swimming meet is the high-light of the spring. Each class participates in the various races: American crawl, breast stroke, and back stroke. There is also competition between classes in perfection of the different styles of swimming: American crawl, breast stroke, back stroke, Australian crawl, side stroke, and English over-arm crawl. Many limber-legged Wesleyannes show their ability on the spring board: jack-knives, back dives, swans, twists, and many others.

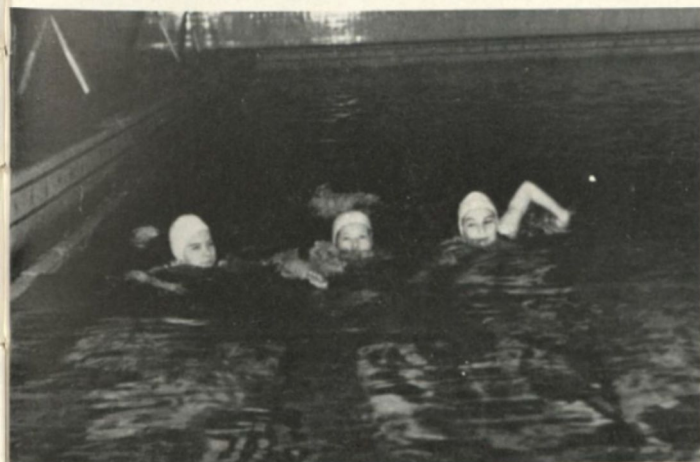

Each class presents a water stunt after the races, form swimming, and diving has been completed. These stunts may be in a skit form or synchronized swimming. These stunts are all original and each member of the team takes part.

The swimming meet is held too late in the year for pictures to be taken for the annual. The names of the girls who made the teams are, however:

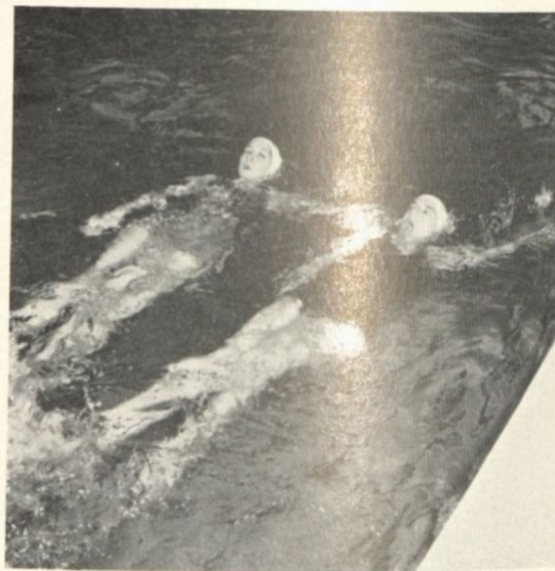

SENIORS: Bell, Burrowes, Clark, Ande Davis, Foley, Gary, Hearn (Captain), Kurtz, Maloy, Powell, Anne Smith, Williams.

JUNIORS: Branan, Hall, Hardin, Kenner, Liipfert, Pate, Shearouse, Sullivan, Sutherland (Captain), Willcox.

SOPHOMORES: Bush, Suzanne Davis (Captain), Hern-don McPherson, Pim, Ragan, Rees, Mary Smith.

FRESHMEN: Batcheller, Bosch (Captain), Betty Davis, Domingos, Hoyt, Johnson, Malone, Martin, Poitevint, Powell, Stapleton, Wolff.

As the annual goes to press it is too early to make a prediction, but each class could tell you which team is the strongest.

MINOR SPORTS

Although soccer bruises add most of the color to fall sports and energetic cage teams invariably start working off Christmas pounds come February, there are numerous other athletic ventures which prove spicy throughout the year. A little ashamed of the tag "Minor Sports" and pessimistic about ever attaining majority, these activities, like most humans not quite 21, nevertheless prove well able to speak for themselves.

In the fall, a tricky ping-pong ball taunts many into a hard and fast tournament, in which some determined girl will end up mistress of the bouncing white spheres. Martha Aiken of Atlanta was victorious this fall.

Badminton reopens competition, appealing to those who are more aerial-minded. Betty King of Anderson, S. C., came down to earth, trained that bird how to fly, and won the 1941 championship.

MINOR

TAP DANCING—Lindsey, Allcorn, Jones.

Before soccer really sets in, freshmen find time to tear up ground on the hockey field and wish that there were more such opportunities in a tournament.

In anxious anticipation of balmy "Love"ly spring, girls can be seen as the second semester begins leaping across the gym in a creative modern dance or beating it out with temperamental tape. It's a good outlet for innate rhythm despite chronic aches and pains.

Finally warm weather gets back round to Georgia. This year an undownable urge drove Wesleyan ladies to congregate, cast off silk stockings, and form a hiking club with Betty King as president and Mr. Forman, art teacher, as adviser.

FOUR JUNIORS PLAYING "PICK-A-BOO"—Adams, Liipfert, Kenner, Clapp.

SPORTS

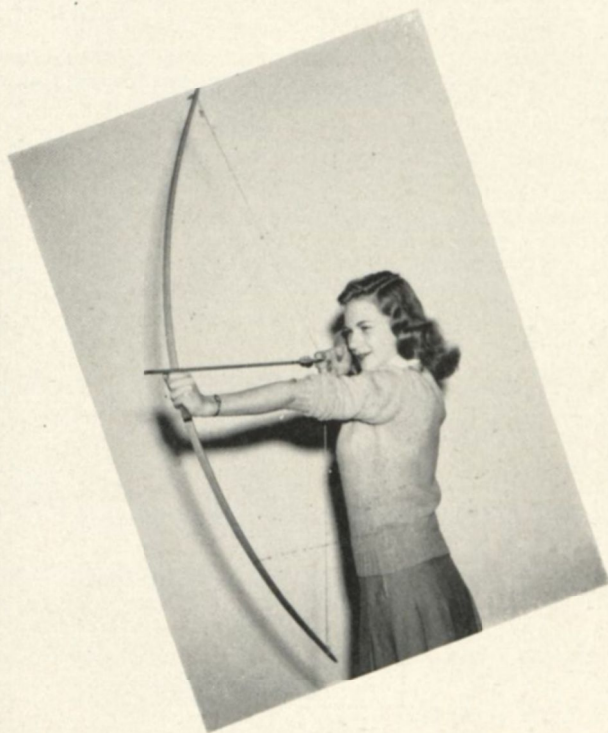

On Dormitory Day after Spring holidays, Wesleyannes display their expert horsemanship. The girls who like to ride enjoy many moonlight rides and suppers after their jaunts through the trailways around and about Wesleyan.

Bicycles are available in the gym to any girls who want to ride. On Saturday mornings Wesleyan girls can be seen pedaling out to Couche's or the Pit for a morning snack.

Archery is among the many Wesleyan minor sports. The equipment is furnished and many girls enjoy this outdoor as well as indoor sport.

THE "W" CLUB

The Wesleyan Point System is the means by which a girl becomes a member of the "W" Club. Each sport gives a certain number of points to its participants, and the girls obtaining 500 points during the year are awarded this letter, thus becoming members of the "W" Club.

Actual ability in competitive play determines entry to the club. During the year, members find keen competition in playing matches of a graduated ladder and tournaments. Ranking six players on the ladder receive chenille tennis "W's"; singles and double champions are awarded trophies.
